

What is a toll credit?

Toll credits reward states that spend their toll revenue on projects that would otherwise require federal-aid support. States and metropolitan planning organizations are eligible to earn credits based on the amount of toll revenue used by the toll authority for building, improving, or maintaining highways, bridges, or tunnels that serve interstate commerce.

HOW TOLL CREDITS WORK

TOLL REVENUE COLLECTED

TOLL REVENUE REINVESTED

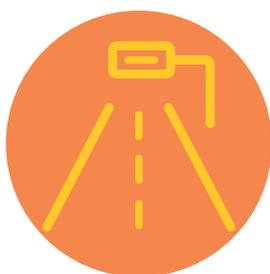

TOLL CREDIT EARNED

TOLL CREDIT USED

WHERE TOLL CREDITS ARE USED

Toll credits do not generate new money! Instead, they can be used as a “soft match” substitute for the non-federal share of most highway and public transportation projects, reducing the burden on states and freeing funding for other transportation projects.

LOCAL

INTERSTATE

TRANSIT

U.S. TOLL CREDIT BALANCES

30
OUT OF 52

states (includes District of Columbia and Puerto Rico) with toll credit balances

58%

$29,079,413,679

Total approximate balance nationwide

